“ My dad was one of the best men I ever knew. He raised me well. He raised me with integrity and with a sense of intellectual security. He wasn't really into sports, but when he realized I was, he took interest and actually became an assistant coach on a few of my baseball teams. Even on the teams he didn't help coach, he was at EVERY one of my games. I thought that was normal at the time, but found out it wasn't when I got older. Once I was a young adult, he supported me more than most fathers would when I had a series of serious screw-ups. I remember once around 2005, in casual conversation I referred to him as my friend, and the look on his face was surprised happiness. That's what happened as I got older. He was still a father figure, but had become a true friend. I will remember him every day for the rest of my life.

“ My best memories of Glen are the many times me and the kids needed him when my husband was gone. Also on his daily runs to get groceries he would make sure I didn't need anything. Plus the times he would call me JP to aggravate me for fun.

“ I remember Glen would always scob our heads. He was like mine and my sister's 2nd dad. It was great growing up next door to Glen

“ So many memories with Glen but my favorite was him always trying to catch me to "scob my noggin"!! Thankfully he only caught me a handful of times. LOL
